Greatest is the sun, and wide he goes
Through empty heaven without repose;
And in blue and glowing days
Move thick than rain he showers his rays.

Ans. The speaker uses the expression 'as wide he goes' to show that the sun travels all around and showers its light on earth.

b) What do you think the poet means by 'empty heaven'?

Ans. The poet means 'cloudless sky' by empty heaven.

Q Why are the ^{rays} extracts described as more thick than rain?

Ans The rays are described more thick than rain because they are strong and capable of getting through most things.

VI Answer the following questions:

Q1 How according to the speaker, does the sun become mischievous during peak summer?

Ans1 During summer, the day gets so hot that one has to pull the blinds to keep the room cool and not let the sunrays enter. But the mischievous sun somehow makes way into the room through some narrow crack or opening and warms the place. It even reaches the spider clad attic through keyholes or through the broken edges of the tiles in the roof.

Q2. What does the sun do in the dusty attic?
Is it welcome there? How do you know?

Ans. The sun rays enter the dusty attic through tiny keyholes and shine upon the spider which spends its days in darkness. Yes, it is welcome in the attic, as the spider is glad when it spots sunlight. The sunlight makes the dark and gloomy attic brighter and more cheerful.

Q3. Why do you think the sun is called 'gardener of the world'?

Ans. A gardener takes care of the trees and plants in a garden so that the plants and trees stay healthy and bear fruits and vegetables. Similarly, the sun's warmth and brightness help life flourish on earth. In fact, as a gardener provides nourishment to plants, so does the sun. In fact the plants need sunlight to make their own food. Hence sun is called the gardener of the world.

4. What do you think will happen to this earth if the sun does not rise on one fine day? [HOTS]

Ans. If the sun did not rise one fine day, there would be a huge environmental impact. The temperature would drop; the process of photosynthesis would be disrupted. Alternate energy would be needed in the absence of sunlight and there would be wide spread panic.
